

Indiana State University

Ph.D. Program in Technology Management

Innovative • On-line Courses

Delivered by Indiana State University in cooperation with other nationally accredited universities across the country, this doctoral program meets the needs of today's technology professionals. An academically rigorous program of study, the Doctor of Philosophy Program in Technology Management offers research and scholarship experiences and in-depth study in a specialization selected from the areas of:

- Construction management
- Digital communication
- Human resource development and training
- Manufacturing systems
- Quality systems

For additional information about the Doctor of Philosophy Program in Technology Management visit www.indstate.edu/consortphd/ or e-mail George.Maughan@indstate.edu

Technology Management Ph.D. Consortium Institutions:

Bowling Green State University, University of Central Missouri, East Carolina University, Indiana State University, and North Carolina A&T State University